the competitive landscape for such services and the potential damages under the contract.

Infrastructure Concession Investment Treaty Arbitration

Ms. Ahee assisted a client with the quantification of losses resulting from a progressive series of actions that culminated in the termination of its services concession. She researched many issues surrounding prior and subsequent concession privatizations in the region and prepared supporting data for positions at issue in the arbitration, including the damages appendices submitted with the GFA expert report and reply report on behalf of the Claimant.

International Commercial Arbitration

Ms. Ahee assisted a client in the determination of damages arising from a support subcontract with the prime contractor to a major government for military support. Her efforts included the determination of correlated variables from which to predict future activity under the prime contract, calculation of the amounts owed under the subcontract using various assumptions about the prime revenues, and evaluation of issues raised by the respondent's expert. She also handled the quality control process for the claimants' expert reports, analyses and exhibits.

Bilateral Investment Treaty Arbitration

Ms. Ahee assisted a client with the evaluation of issues surrounding the alleged expropriation of a leased concession by the host State. Issues presented included compliance with the terms of the lease, including determination of subsequent investments, record keeping compliance and the quantum of harm suffered by the Claimant.

U.S. Medical Products Litigation

She analyzed medical records of a number of plaintiffs in several similar medical products matters. Her work was used by the trial team to present evidence relating to the injuries plaintiffs alleged were caused by the client's product and to show alternative theories of causation.

International Antitrust Litigation

Ms. Ahee assisted an Asian manufacturer in the defense of a significant antitrust litigation in the U.S. Her work on this matter included the preparation of databases of pricing data and product purchases, and the subsequent use of those databases to analyze pricing patterns by product type over time. GFA's analysis was used by the client to evaluate the plaintiffs' (both class and individual) contentions and ultimately to value the matter for settlement purposes.

Oil Industry International Arbitration

Ms. Ahee assisted a party defending an international arbitration arising out of an offshore investment in hydrocarbon production. She has focused her efforts her on the analysis of production rates and their variation, documentation of historic currency fluctuations and the impact they have on financial results, and cite checking and documentary support for the expert report submitted with respondent's memorial.

Dealer Class Action Litigation

She assisted a Fortune 500 company in the analysis of accounting and financial issues resulting in a class complaint for over $700 million in alleged damages. Ms. Ahee managed the several thousand documents used in the class matter, prepared trial files and performed the quality control checking of expert reports and underlying source documentation.

Computer System Processing Error

Ms. Ahee assisted a Fortune 500 company in the determination of the impact of a computer processing error on its clients. Ms. Ahee analyzed client data to tie the potential error out by client and within each client, by sub-codes. She prepared various audit trail reconciliations for submission to the government regulator and performed the consistency checking between the detailed reports and the summary narrative submitted to the regulator. She also performed the quality control review on narrative submitted to the third party auditor engaged to assist one of the company's affected clients in understanding and responding to the system issue.

International Commercial Arbitration

Ms. Ahee helped a Singapore client evaluate its damages arising from the breach of a technology license agreement. She researched Southeast Asian industry and GDP data for use in projecting potential profits under the license. Ms. Ahee served as the quality control reviewer for GFA's written reports and hearing testimony and prepared the underlying exhibits from which the GFA expert testified.

Workout of Bond Indenture Collateral

Ms. Ahee provided assistance to a group of international banks facing draws on their letters of credit issued to support a series of bond indentures holding student loans. When state and federal guarantees of the underlying loans were suspended, GFA's principals performed a variety of analyses to assess the potential for reinstatement of guarantees, improvement of portfolio performance and sale of the underlying collateral to stem potential losses to the letter of credit providers. Ms. Ahee helped keep the numerous bank clients informed during the nearly ten-year duration of the project.

Domestic Antitrust Litigation

Ms. Ahee helped a domestic provider of veterinary diagnostic services analyze antitrust claims brought by a potential new entrant to the field. She performed research on industry companies and on the plaintiff entity and its owner's prior ventures. Ms. Ahee also served as the quality control reviewer for the GFA expert report.

Investment Treaty Arbitration Database

Ms. Ahee is the principal researcher and preparer of GFA's database of ICSID and Ad Hoc investment treaty arbitrations worldwide. In this regard, she reviews every new investment treaty award arising from alleged violations of bilateral and multilateral investment treaties, host country investment laws and the Energy Charter Treaty. Statistics from the database were first presented at the May 2007 meeting of the American Bar Association Section of International Law and were updated and published annually for distribution to interested practitioners. Upon the commencement of the semiannual publication of “The ICSID Caseload – Statistics” by the International Centre for Settlement of Investment Disputes, publication of these annual statistics by GFA has been discontinued.
